Space ranger roger theme song lyrics

Photo: izusek/E+/Getty Images Many think the early 1980s were the dawn of the digital age. New technologies emerged in almost all aspects of life. From heart transplants and stumbling synthesizers to computers and DNA mapping, no one could deny that there was a big deal in the '80s. Fashion was no exception as bright neon colours littered the landscape. Loud fashion came with even louder music. The music was fun, catchy and especially danceable. Instead of performing live, many hits had music videos, each with a higher production budget than before. To show the world the true definition of a music video, Michael Jackson released Thriller in 1983, the third video from his album of the same name. Director John Landis and special effects guru Rick Baker (director and Oscar-winning makeup artist An American Werewolf in London) helped bring Michael Jackson's horror movie-themed video to life. Horror coin Vincent Price offering voice actors and the en next 45-minute documentary Thriller became a masterpiece. The men just didn't spend a lot of money on videos. Madonna had men in tuxedo suits in her Material Girl video. He then followed it with the lion and travelled to Venice and New York for his Like a Virgin video. He even organized that decade of competition for bragging rights (and $25,000) for creating a concept for his True Blue video. Photo: CBS Come Knocking... The door to this quiz! The 1970s were a dynamic time. Hippies and flower children were outside. Afros and the bell bottoms were at the top of fashion and the disco rocked the airwaves. When all this happened, tv shows from the 1970s were led by their catchy theme songs. From Three's Company to Jeffersons, can you finish the lyrics to these 1970s TV theme songs? Although in the 1980s and 1990s TV sitcoms and their branching into the world of friends, in the 1970s there was a strong focus on family. Sitcoms such as All in the Family, The Jeffersons and The Brady Bunch were popular with viewers. There were even good days and good times. The shows of the decade also followed roommates at Three's Company and colleagues at M*A*S*H. They had one-woman shows like The Mary Tyler Moore Show and Maude.The 1970s varied during their TV shows, and while you may remember the characters and story lines, how well do you remember the theme songs? Do you remember where the Jeffersons moved? The Brady Bunch had a story about a lovely woman who was what? If you remember these words, you're ready for this quiz! You can't get started without its theme song. It's the same way you can't get to the perfect score without this quiz. You think you can do it? Let's find out! Copyright © 2021 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, System1 Company Photo: ABC Are you a fan of 1960s television shows? Can you sing the lyrics to every theme song in these shows? If you think you can keep yours, we've arranged a quiz for you based on the theme songs of the '60s. We challenge you to guess them all. In the 1960s, there was a decade of television shows whose theme songs were still playing in our heads. Here's an example: They're creepy and comical, mysterious and scary, they're completely ooky, the Addams family. Their house is a museum when people come to see them, they really are a scream, the Addams family. You sang those words, didn't you? Because I was impressed with these theme songs. Even some theme songs that rejected the unsanctioned introduction are recognizable. When we mention I dream of Jeannie, you may be able to hum the theme song, but what were the lyrics? In fact, I Dream of Jeannie was words, although the producers eventually opted for a musical introduction. If you're really up to date with your 60s theme songs, we know you'll be able to recognize even these slightly obscure theme songs.
